systematic training, and proper recognition and recompense.

Selection of Scorers and Timers

For these VIP's:

- (1) Choose adults. A high school Senior or one of last June's graduates will have the interest and enthusiasm but may lack poise, impartiality and judgment.
- (2) Choose someone who has had some playing, coaching or officiating experience.
- (3) Choose men who can and will be present at every home game. It may be an honor to act as Timer or Scorer, but it's not an honor which should be passed around with each game.
- (4) If faculty men are available for these jobs they usually do the best work, although there are exceptions.
- (5) Above all, choose someone with plenty of poise, good judgment, a sense of impartiality and one who you are sure will be able to forget the score and concentrate instead on his job.

Training These VIP's

- (1) Before the opening of the season provide them with a Rules Book, Case Book and other basketball rules material available through the State Office. This should be done regardless of the number of years they may have served on the job. There are frequent rules changes which affect the tasks of these officials. It might be well to mark or otherwise call attention to those sections of the rules which directly or indirectly refer to their duties. Insist on a careful study of the newly prepared "Instructions to Scorers" and "Instructions to Timers."
- (2) Insist that your Timer and Scorer attend one of the state-sponsored rules interpretation meetings, and, if possible, an occasional meeting of a local officials' group.
- (3) Before the first game, arrange for several inter-squad scrimmages conducted under actual game conditions with your Timer and Scorer at the bench. Plan to set up unusual situations involving timing and scoring. Check carefully on the work done in these scrimmages and make comments and criticisms.
- (4) Observe the work of these officials during games and make suggestions for improvement.
- (5) See that your Timers and Scorers are accorded the same courtesy and respect as that due the major Officials. Their work is important and it should be done with dignity and pride in good workmanship.
